Who's Heard of "Bird Week?"

How many of you know that Arkansas has an official "Bird Week?" Edith Halberg gave us a copy of the legislation designating the third week in April as "Bird Week.

The legislation states that local schools should celebrate "Bird Week" during which... Suitable classroom exercises are to be engaged in, and lessons on the economic and esthetic value of the resident and migratory birds of the state are to be taught...

Is any of this really being done? Maybe we can get Governor Clinton to make some kind of announcement supporting this progressive legislation and urge schools around the state to participate.

Hotlines

ASCA Rare Bird Alert: 753-5833. Call to learn what birds have been sighted and where, and leave a message about the birds you've seen. If you need information about Audubon, leave your name and number and someone will get back with you.

In Washington, DC

National Audubon Hotline: 202-547-9017. A recorded message gives you background information and current status of Audubon's priority issues. Available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, the message is updated weekly. The Hotline lets you know when something will do the most good.

National Wildlife Federation Legislative Hotline: 202-797-6655. A 4-minute message updated every Tuesday. It is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, so you can call when the rates are cheaper for this area. It is great for conservation activists who like to follow the issues, or just to keep informed.

Congressional Reference Service: 202-225-1772. To learn the current status on any Federal bill, call between 9:00 am and 6:00 pm. Be sure to have the bill's number or official title ready; the service is free, but the call isn't.

Belize Naturalist to Speak

A woman who knows Central American flora and fauna intimately will be our very special speaker at the April ASCA meeting. Dora Weyer, an expert in tropical ecology, will lecture and make a slide presentation on Thursday, April 11 at 7:00 pm at the Game and Fish Commission building.

Weyer, who currently lives in Fayetteville, spent 25 years in Belize, studying the neo-tropical environment. She has published articles on the birds of Belize, as well as reptiles, amphibians, mammals and flora of that country. Her particular interests in birds include the Jabiru Stork and the King Vulture.

This dynamic woman established the Parrot's Wood Biological Research Station to encourage wildlife research and environmental education in Belize. Weyer also leads birding and natural history tours to Central and South America.

We are excited to be able to bring such a knowledgeable speaker to Little Rock. Plan to join us to hear Dora Weyer speak about the birds of Central America.

Conservation Coalition Action

The Arkansas Conservation Coalition (ACC) released a position paper February 22, explaining in detail its opposition to the Army Corps of Engineers' plan to make the Ouachita River navigable.

The Corps wants to eliminate 25 sharp bends in the river between Cadeville and Sterlington, Louisiana, by digging a 94-foot deep navigation channel to accommodate barge traffic. The project also threatens to flood 3800 acres of bottomland hardwood through its water control plan.

The ACC Coalition (ASCA is one of 10 members) believes the project wastes tax dollars and causes more environmental damage than economic benefits. ACC feels the inundation and destruction of bottomland hardwoods to maintain a 94-foot navigation channel for non-existent barge traffic is a deplorable inversion of policy priorities.

Annual Crash Bird Course

What kind of food do cardinals like best? How much should you spend on birdseed? Is one bird feeder better than another? All these questions and more will be answered at the annual Crash Bird Course this month.

At the Pinnacle Mountain Visitor Center on Saturday, April 6, from 9:00 am to 12:00 pm, ASCA will offer a workshop for beginning birders, including a short field trip.

The class is limited to 40 people, so reservations are a must! It costs $8.00 per person/family, payable at the door. (Fee includes handouts, field guide and refreshments.) Bring a sack lunch. Spring migration is a great time to see birds!
Legislative Peck-a-Boo
Representative Vic Snyder, completing his first term in the Arkansas House, will give us an "inside look" at the legislative process at our May general meeting.
Vic Snyder is a physician and an active ASCA member. He has joined us on several field trips. He will give us pointers on how we can be more successful with environmental legislation. Come hear Vic Snyder speak on May 18 at the Game & Fish Commission building.

Summer Potluck Supper Preview
Our summer Potluck Supper will be Saturday, June 8, at Maumelle Park west of Little Rock. Pavilion #1 has been reserved from 4:00–5:30 pm so there will be lots of time for birdwatching before we eat at 6:30 pm.
Please bring an entree, appetizer or dessert and ASCA will provide beverages, plates, napkins and utensils. Mark your calendars now for this special evening. (We’ll provide directions and a reminder in the next Supe.)

Ecology Camp for Teachers
If you know a teacher - or you ARE a teacher - with a deep interest in learning more about the natural world, ASCA may have just the ticket! Every year we sponsor a local teacher for 1 week in the Audubon Ecology Camps.
These camps are located in beautiful settings such as Maine (Connecticut and Wisconsin), and the 7-day sessions stress hands-on field ecology. ASCA pays for tuition and some travel expenses.
We are now accepting applications from teachers, scout leaders, park naturalists - anyone who works with children or young people. If you are interested in applying or know someone who might benefit from this unique educational experience, please contact Neil Curry or Ann Beutelschies. Our deadline is April 31st.

Just for the Birds
Just For the Birds by Richard DuVall, Rose Publishing Company, Inc. 19723 Foxcroft Road, Little Rock, AR 72205.
This is an entertaining book written in typical DuVall verse. It will appeal to those who enjoy a light-hearted approach to birds; do not expect serious birding information. The pen and ink illustrations are fun, with the entire book being written for kids of all ages.

Bird Notes and News
Bill Shepherd and Bo Verder spotted a Rufous-crowned Sparrow at Mt. Nebo on Feb. 9. It stayed for two weeks. The only other confirmed sighting of this western bird in Arkansas occurred in 1990.
A Prairie Falcon caught the eye of Doug James on Feb. 12 west of Decatur in Benton County. Max and Helen Parker also saw a Prairie Falcon Feb. 13 at Holt Bend.
At Dutch Creek near Danville, Karen Yaich reported 52 (and still counting) Bald Eagles on Feb. 12. Karen also saw a Red-tailed Hawk in a small field between Lodge Corner and DeWitt on Feb. 28. The flock included a "Harlan's" variety.
Don Simmons counted 67 Ross's Geese on Feb. 16 in a large flock of mixed geese north of Tiller.
New ASCA member, Betsy Hall-Jones welcomed spring when 150 Cedar Waxwings roosted in a magnolia tree at her Quapaw Quarter home Feb. 19.
The ASCA Hotline received reports of a Rufous Hummingbird in El Dorado on Feb. 28 and a rufous-colored in a Park Hill backyard in North Little Rock the first week of March. Roberto Carrato sees early signs of spring include Pectoral Sandpiper, Eastern Phoebe, Purple Martin, Barrow Swallow, and Bachman's Sparrow.
On March 3, Nigel Ball saw two Rufous-crowned Sparrows at Red Rock Brink in Pike County, nearly 100 miles south of previous sightings.
Bob Dougis was fixtures on the white-headed grockle (partial albino) among a flock that landed in her Pleasant Valley backyard March 11.
Share your bird sights. Write Nancy King at 208 Arch St., Little Rock 72206 or call 372-6453.

Birding Big Day at Lake Chicot
Three Rivers Audubon Society, serving the Pine Bluff area, is sponsoring a birdathon on April 27th. They're calling it "Birding Big Day" and it's an effort to make enough money to buy a party barge trailer for Lake Chicot State Park.
Last year birders counted 96 species in one 24-hour period in Chicot County. This year they want to break 100. Energetic volunteers are needed for the all-count.
Help by pledging to donate a specific amount of money for each species identified by the group. More information contact Don Simons, Lake Chicot Interpretive Center, Rt. 1, Box 1555, Lake Village, AR 72150, phone 1-263-5480.

For membership write to Henry Halberg, 5800 N. Country Club, Little Rock, AR 72207 or call 663-1812.
It is important that new members join through ASCA, so a portion of your dues supports local activities.

ASCA SURVEY OF MEMBERSHIP
The membership of any organization is its strength. ASCA wants the input of its members on two areas of its activities - field trips and member involvement. Please take a few minutes to complete this short questionnaire. It is very important to us to learn exactly how we can serve you with our information. Look for a summary of results in future issues of the Supe.
After completing the questionnaire, return it to:

The President's Column
A lot has been happening this spring. The Arkansas legislature has been in session, and among the literally thousands of bills being considered is a number of proposals to address the many environmental problems facing the state. The onechief concern to many of us is: how are we going to fix the world over a year now to get this bill before the legislature) is the proposed restructuring of the Arkansas Pollution Control & Ecology Commission (PC&EC). After a series of nine public hearings last year, proponents of a restructured PC&EC decided to give the legislature an opportunity to correct the inherent structural biases toward industry.

The administration bill, Senate Bill 227, was sponsored by Sen. Wayne Dowd (Texarkana), and after a number of hearings in the Senate Committee for State Agencies & Governmental Affairs, was finally given a 6-1 do-pass. The bill exited committee with three amendments which the proponents did not want, but which were vital to having a realistic shot at passage in the full Senate.

For those of you not familiar with the issues involved, here's a little history. The current eleven member PC&EC consists of six state agency heads (Geology, Oil & Gas, Soil & Water, Forestry, Game & Fish, and Health) along with five gubernatorial appointees representing five special interests (mining, industry, agriculture & livestock, municipalities, and environment). The present four restructured PC&EC would have removed all state agency heads and special interests from the Commission, and required the governor to appoint the commissioners on a geographical basis. The version of the bill that went to the Senate (as amended in committee) called for an eleven member Board comprised of seven citizens with expertise in a number of professional disciplines (and including all four congressional districts) as well as four of the current state agency heads (Soil & Water, Forestry, Game & Fish, and Health). On March 4, Sen W.D. Mosor (D-Dorado) proposed an amendment, at the behest of the bill's opponents to add back the other two state agency heads. After a prolonged battle, the amendment passed 19-14. This amendment effectively killed the bill, as we had already put the Senate on notice that we had made all the compromises we could and still leave our names attached to this bill. Several senators had privately expressed their support for the bill prior to the vote, but told us they could not safely vote for it.

On March 6, Rep. John Parkerson (Hot Springs) introduced an identical bill (58-227 prior to the killing amendment) in the House. On the morning of March 13, the House bill came to a vote, and without even allowing anyone to speak, an amendment was offered and narrowly passed, with the minimum 11 votes. This bill is sent on to all six agencies, and will continue to serve on the Commission. After the Committee session and vote, representatives of the various environmental groups met and reluctantly agreed to accept the political reality, that the only bill we could get passed was a 13-member Commission with seven citizens (a bare majority) appointed by the Governor, along with the six state agency heads.

As we go to press there is a high probability that this bill will pass the legislature and become law. Where do we go from here? It is our duty to scrutinize the actions of the PC&EC Commission, and if they make any decisions without giving equal consideration to the environmental aspects, we need to take them to task. Only by demanding a high level of performance from these Commissioners will we live up to our own ideals. If they don't, there is always the next legislative session. - Barry Hunt

Rebsamen Park Lawnsuit Filed
At the Audubon Society of Central Arkansas, and four individuals, filed suit in January to stop the extension of Rebsamen Park Road. The suit claims that this project would destroy natural areas in and around Rebsamen Park by the creation of a freeway. The hearing is scheduled for March 25 (after The Scope goes to press), and a U.S. District judge will hear all work on the project until a verdict is reached.

ASCA took this action contending that the Corps of Engineers did not sufficiently study the adverse impact a high-speed thoroughfare would have on the wetlands and surrounding area. ASCA anticipates a significant increase in vehicular traffic, which would affect air quality, wildlife and recreational activities. The suit contends the Corps did not do a proper Environmental Impact Statement, nor did it follow correct procedures in giving public notice on the permit.

Although voters approved this project in a 1987 bond issue, ASCA says people were supporting general street repairs and not construction of a freeway through a quiet riverfront park.

ASCA Member Newsbriefs
We are happy to add another ASCA member to the leadership roster. Ann Posl, many years a cochair of our Education Committee, has attended most ASCA meetings since last year and, when we asked her to become more involved, she agreed. Ann is a great addition to our Education Committee.

ASCA spent over $6,000 on education last year, including $1.000 to the Arkansas Audubon Education Camp, $3,000 to Pinecone Mountain State Park, and $1,500 to send two local teachers to New Conservation Post Natural Audubon's Education Camps. We also sponsor 24 classes in the "Audubon Adventures" classroom enrichment program for grade schools.

Ann joins Neil Curry on the important Education Committee. Contact either of them if you have suggestions to improve our education programs.

New Conservation Post
Our vice president, Drew Phillips, has been named Coordinator of the Arkansas Conservation Coalition. Drew has worked hard for the ACC in opposing an Army Corps of Engineers project to build the Osage River Park.

Randy Mowery will now assist Barry Haas in representing ASCA interests on the Arkansas Conservation Coalition.

Arkansas Audubon Council
At the Febraury 1200 meeting, we selected three people to serve as our voice on the newly formed Arkansas Audubon Council. Barry Haas, Dan Mallard and Carol Wood will help get the ACC off to a successful start.

Memorials and Donations
In memory of her father, Samuel Mitchell, Cathy Mitchell (former ASCA vice president) gave the organization a Sony stereo cassette player. Thank you, Cathy. We're already using it in lectures and presentations.

Mary Margaret Bell, a long-time member of the Pulaski County Audubon Society (ASCA's predecessor), died on March 13 in Little Rock. Margaret took care of injured birds in her backyard from 1963-1974. In fact, according to Edith Halberg, she ran her own bird hospital.

Mildred Givens has a creative way to spend a little money for a lot of good. She made a donation to the Arkansas non-game fund to construct a barn owl box near Benton. The non-game program is vastly underfunded and there is no doubt this donation will be well used.

Cost Rica: Bird Paradise

A number of Arkansas birders journeyed to Costa Rica in January in search of birds, butterflies and unspoiled beauty. Not surprisingly, they found it.

SERC, vice president of the Arkansas Audubon Society, led a group of twenty, including five Arkansans, through tropical rain forests and cool cloud forests. . . . from the Caribbean to the Pacific slope. They saw more than 100 bird species, including the Laughing Falcon, trogons, Resplendent Quetzal, motmots and toucans.

The Arkansas Natural Conservancy also sponsored a trip to Costa Rica in January. Led by Frances Cranford, eight naturalists traveled through the widely diverse habitats of this small Central American country to see mammals, birds, turtles, snakes, insects and flowers. Highlights of their trip included Scarlet Macaw, nestling oropendolas, a jaguarundi and the venomous fer-de-lance.
